House called to order at 11 A. M., Speaker McDonnell in the chair.

Roll called, quorum present.
Prayer by Rev. Van Deventer.
Journal read and approved.

MESSAGE FROM GOVERNOR.

Approving Assembly bill providing for destruction of certain noxious animals.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS.

By Powell—That Committee on Education be allowed to have the use of Assembly Chamber this evening. Adopted.

Twiss—That R. L. Thomas have leave of absence until Monday next, providing he put competent clerk to take his place at his (Thomas') expense. Adopted.

Mr. Pike moved that the vote by which the above resolution was adopted be reconsidered.

There was considerable discussion, participated in by Pike, Drury, Williamson, Smith, McConnell, Twiss and Ezan, in which it was held that the absence of the Assistant Chief Clerk would invalidate any action on bills and other business of the Assembly. No other clerk being present to perform his duties, (Mr. Thomas left for San Francisco last evening.) Mr. Drury contended that the only way the Assembly could proceed with business was to declare the office vacant, and to elect a new Assistant Clerk.

Mr. Pike thought Mr. Thomas had treated the Assembly very discourteously, and ought to be dispossessed of his office.

The motion to adjourn till tomorrow was lost.

Mr. Pike moved that the House proceed to elect an Assistant Clerk. Pending consideration of this motion the previous question was called, and the original motion granting leave of absence reconsidered, and motion laid on table.

Mr. Williamson moved that Assembly adjourn.

McConnell moved as an amendment that Assembly adjourn till Monday.

Amendment lost—Ayes 15, noes 24.

Motion to adjourn lost.

The motion granting Mr. Thomas leave of absence was finally rejected, and Assembly took a recess till 1:30.

Mosby's Bombshell.

Every week some new man springs to the front and writes a new account of a battle. Col. John Mosby proposes to explode a bomb under the historians. To a New York interviewer he said:

I think Roscoe Conkling the greatest man to-day in America. What a President he would make! I know him personally. That fact has enhanced my respect for his surpassing ability and transcending statesmanship. He is a kind of statesman the Republican party should be proud of. I settled in San Francisco, the first place I landed at in America. My stay East thus far has been at Washington. I have been looking over the archives of the War Department, preparing an article on the battle of Gettysburg. I discovered facts that will be a revelation about the battle. I will throw a bombshell into the army of historians and explode all the stories hitherto given about the battle. Thus far those who have written on the subject have failed to give the true history of that campaign. My article will bring forth facts that will startle a good many who have been pretty much settled in their convictions. My article will not be sensational at all, but it will be like the throwing of dynamite under all theories that have hitherto been advanced about that memorable battle.

A Confusion of Names.

Yesterday a friend of the ex-State Surveyor General asked the editor of the APPEAL if he was down on Preble. An understanding was soon arrived at. He had seen some articles directed against the U. S. Surveyor General, the Mugwump located at Reno, and had confounded him with the State Surveyor General who is a straight Republican located at Carson. It is to be hoped that in future no one will confound the two.

The Normal School Question.

There was a long discussion in the Assembly chamber last evening over the Normal School Bill. Senator Stewart, Colonel Ellis, Regent Shaw, General Clarke, Attorney General Alexander and others took part in the debate which lasted until about midnight.

A Malicious Report.

The Winnemucca Silver State says the report of the suicide at Tuacacara, of Miss Sarah Arndale, proves to be a malicious falsehood. The young lady is reported in good health.

—Mr. Alfred Helm of this city says that he used to live in the same county in Iowa with C. W. Irish, the new U. S. Surveyor General. It was a Republican county by 800 majority, yet Irish used to carry it when elected County Surveyor by 300 majority while running on the Democratic ticket. A man that can command such a vote under such circumstances must have a reasonably good record.

—The new Mugwump paper in Hawthorne hits the APPEAL some dreadful raps by spelling its name with a small a. It is such things as these that make the regret universal that the profession of journalism in Nevada should have become a waste dump for failures in the legal profession.

LAW MAKING.

A California Paper Thinks We Have too Much of it.

Last Winter, says the Sacramento Bee, the Nevada Legislature passed what is known as the Anti-Treating law. It prohibited treating in saloons. This law has been a dead letter from the time of its passage, and a bill has been framed for its repeal.

Here is an illustration of the folly of enactments that are not supported by public sentiment. Such measures are never enforced. They are worse than useless, for they tend to bring all law into contempt.

The great lesson for Legislators to learn is to avoid the making of unnecessary laws. No measure should be enacted unless there can be shown an absolute need of it. Nine-tenths of all legislation is mischievous, and, sooner or later, needs to be repealed or amended. The main work of the British Parliament consists in the repeal of bad laws. And the labors of Legislative bodies in the United States are already largely of this character, though this is but a young country. Legislatures are necessary, but, aside from the routine work required of them, they probably do more harm than good. They make statutory law a thing of shreds and patches, in which no consistency or system can be found. Their sessions are awaited with alarm by the people, and their adjournment brings a sigh of relief from everybody. Each raw youth who is elected a member of a Legislature fancies himself a Solon, and rushes to the Capitol with a gripsack full of bills. Thus early in the present session of our California Legislature there have been about 150 bills introduced, and this number will be easily quadrupled before the session ends. Most of them are unnecessary, some are pernicious, and some are the veriest bosh. The few good bills are in danger of being buried under the accumulation of rubbish. Happily, the majority of bosh bills will be killed by the committees, or left to perish of neglect.

Broker's Rights.

There is a bill introduced in the Nevada Legislature defining embezzlement. We hope it will pass. The practice of treating money held in trust as if it were part of the holder's private capital is becoming too common. It is resorted to by men who would think it beneath them to break open a safe, but who are more dangerous and demoralizing to the community than burglars. The immediate sequel to every failure of a broker should be a thorough investigation of its causes. If it is found to be due to speculation with other people's capital, the next step should be a prosecution for embezzlement. The sight of a few respectable sharpers in State Prison might not console their victims, but it would have a healthy effect on a speculative community.

A Big Contract.

Rev. A. C. Bane, of Grace Church, Stockton, has taken a big contract. He has preached a sermon on "Stockton by Gas Light," and will preach another on the same subject next Sunday evening. He proposes to improve the morals of that town and especially the morals of the members of the churches by telling the truth and exposing the shortcomings of old and young men, married and single, boys and girls and frisky matrons and frolicsome wives.

Unappreciated Cleanliness.

Yesterday morning the APPEAL editor hired a man to clean the APPEAL sanctum up so that it might be presentable to visitors. As luck would have it a lady called and the editor was mentally congratulating himself that the cleaning was done just in time when she cast a critical eye around and remarked:

"Why don't you clean your office up. I should just die if I had to stay in such a place an hour."

Had she called the day before there would have been a swell funeral sure.

Badly Fooled.

Last Sunday morning when the church bells rang a man was seen rushing frantically through the Ormsby House yelling fire in his night clothes. It proved to be Assemblyman McConnell of Humboldt, who was unaccustomed to the strange noise of church bells calling sinners to prayers.
